German and Skelly Meet in Brooklyn To-Night—Sporting Notes.

There are many people who are complaining about the manner in which he has withheld the attack made upon him by John L. Sullivan. The captain has been much cut up by the big fellow's slurring remarks, but he has refrained so far from replying in kind. Speaking of the coolness between Sullivan and himself this morning, Corbett said:

"I can see no reason why Sullivan should abuse me as he does. He never loses an opportunity to say things intended to discredit me and place me in a worse position. His latest declaration is that I begged him not to hit me hard at the sparring exhibition we gave at home in San Francisco. The facts in the case are these:

The papers for some days before the sparring exhibition stated that Sullivan was going to punch me out, and that was going to try and do him up. On the afternoon before the benefit Jack Barrett, Sullivan's manager, came to my house and asked me what the reports meant. He wanted to know if I intended to spar Sullivan in earnest. He said, 'You know, Corbett, that Sullivan has been drinking heavily of late, and is way out of condition. He could not do himself justice. He wants simply to give an exhibition, and that is all. No knock-out business.' I said to Barrett, 'Jack, you can send Sullivan into the ring with an out-and-out peg on and I won't take advantage of it.' Barrett went away saying he was perfectly satisfied. About 7 o'clock a messenger boy came from Barrett and said that Sullivan was sent. Barrett wanted me to come down and talk with John L. until it was time to give our exhibition. I did so. We talked for two hours. Then we went on and gave a terrible show. Sullivan simply tapped me and I told the same to him."

"We parted, I supposed good friends. That night, however, the news got to John L. and his managers. Sullivan also left for Astoria. I wrote him a letter wishing him a pleasant and profitable trip, and sent a box of cigars with the note. Sullivan refused to accept the cigars and called me a stiff. From that time he has said all kinds of mean things about me. Now I will show him whether I am stiff or not. I will do my level best to whip him to par him off for life, meaning it for no other purpose than to teach him a lesson. I am not afraid of him. I have never tried to injure him. I only seem to injure other people it is inconveniences of his. I am going to meet the 'big fellow' and make him pay for his result."

Capt. George Soden of the National Athletic Club, in speaking of the boxing exhibition to be given by the club tonight in the German Hall, said that the fight had been devised considerable attention to this show, as well as the tournament committee. We also give the best exhibition in the history of the Club. Interest among the athletes of Brooklyn over the contests between Skelly and Corbett is very great. Many of the populars, and their friends will be out in force. Germans will weigh in at 122 pounds and Skelly at 120. Both are decorated. They have been working like leavers to help their reputations. We have made arrangements to properly handle the big crowd that will be here. We will have a good time without any business about this show. The men have agreed to meet on the square. They will suffer more than defeat in the end."

BITS OF Gossip Heard Here and There About Stage Folk.

The latest is that Manager J. W. Billings is becoming very popular with the members of the Manhattan Athletic Club. Ever since George L. Fox has been writing in the paper that all contestants can practice in the armory, Tuesdays and Friday nights have been reserved for athletes and women, making it easier for them. Another advantage of the privilege, Secretary Corbett says, is that all who use the floor must present a competitor's ticket.

Hugh Leonard, the well-known wrestler, is becoming very popular with the members of the Manhattan Athletic Club. Ever since George L. Fox has been writing in the paper that all contestants can practice in the armory, Tuesdays and Friday nights have been reserved for athletes and women, making it easier for them. Another advantage of the privilege, Secretary Corbett says, is that all who use the floor must present a competitor's ticket.

The latest is that Manager J. W. Billings is going to have a new Ring-a-ling operation next season, and that he is negotiating with Marie Tempest. It is said that the manager has offered the singer $100 per week, but she will not sign a contract for anything less than $150. At the Casino Marie Tempest received $100 per week, which she did not consider sufficient. Mr. Billings has secured Harry B. Smith to write the libretto of the new opera, and Reginald de Koven to compose the music. Marie Tempest is to get an opera on the style of "La Tragédie," and will be presented in a number of cities. The manager's brother in Chicago is understood to be financially interested in the enterprise and to have placed at its disposal the sum of $20,000, so that Mr. Billings will not be the proprietor, but the manager of the organization. The bestmoms are about to do a new comic opera by Messrs. Smith and de Koven. This will be "The Kidneys."

The New York Baseball Club managers are getting a very mystic manner just now. They have not given up angling for Richeson. They are also after Kelly. "Old Joe" is still looking for a manager, and is trying to EARN MONEY WORLD to say that he would like to bet a certain amount at even money that a diamond wins from Stavin. This will be "The Kidneys."

Sixty-four baseball players are still officers for the season. The manager of the Plainfield team, which has withdrawn from the league, is still looking for a manager. The managers of the Hillside, Elmwood, and Rosedale Park teams, and the manager of the Hillside and the metropolis can come to a satisfactory agreement.

The West Side Athletic Club has about twenty-five players for the final boxing show it will give this season. The show will occur at the Lyceum Opera House March 19.
